

In our last series, God, Trinity, and Revelation, we were introduced to Jesus—an integral member of the Godhead. This raises a couple of questions, especially within the context of Holy Week: how can a ‘man’ be ‘God’, and more so, how can he be both fully man and fully God. Perhaps more important is: did he have to be both? This begins our series on Christology. The Director of Communications (Dr. T) puts one of these foundational questions to Rev. Clinton Magnus in today’s Conversation.

Dr. T: Why did Jesus have to be both fully God and fully human?

Rev. Magnus: Click here to listen to the Conversation.

Rev. Clinton Magnus has served as parish Pastor since 2009 in Kitimat BC and Humboldt Sask. He has been circuit counsellor in both circuits and sits on the central RRCM, Synod’s Quadrennial planning committee, and the board of Regents for Concordia Lutheran Seminary in Edmonton. He has also been the chair of the BC Mission Boat Society.

In our next Conversation, as we continue our journey back to the basics, we explore what exactly did His death accomplish . . .