

In our last few entries of the Conversations, we've been examining what turns out to be a very important distinction between Law and Gospel, when someone raised a pertinent question. The Director of Communications (Dr. T) puts that question to Rev. Dr. Richard Juritsch:

Dr. T: Can the Bible be trusted even when it's hard to understand?

Rev. Dr. Juritsch: Listen to what Rev. Dr. Juritsch has to say here.

Rev. Dr. Richard Juritsch has served as a parish pastor for eight years at Risen Christ Lutheran Church, Mississauga, ON and for twenty-five years at Grace Lutheran Church, St. Catharines, ON, where he currently serves. God has blessed him with his wife, Tracey, and his daughter, Katie and son-in-law, Mason.

Keep tuning in to the Conversations, where we journey back to basics and have your questions answered.
